

God Wears Lipstick

Kabbalah for Women

By Karen Berg

From her strong-willed youth, Karen Berg surrendered to the wisdom of what is called the teachings of Kabbalah. In 1968, this was only taught to scholarly Jewish men over 40. Karen decided that this had gone on long enough. Applying her strong will to a good cause, she insisted it be made available to all people. Along with her life partner, Rav Berg, they opened the doors on this esoteric form of spiritual principles. The passionate collaboration of these two visionary pioneers made its mark, opening the door on an ancient wisdom, bringing the bread of spiritual plenty, Kabbalah, to the public.

Karen Berg is a powerhouse of passion and spiritual will. Her first book, “God Wears Lipstick”, is written in a warm, down-to-earth style that accurately captures Karen’s directed focus. Acknowledging the spiritual power with which women are born, she reminds us of both our potency and responsibility.

Karen lucidly outlines a woman’s role as wholly equal to men in creation and manifestation: “The feminine is the receptive element in Creation. She is the vessel. Without the vessel, there cannot be Light. It is the female who brings Light into the home, manifesting all the energy and putting it in its place, and helping others grow. Women are the nourishers of the world, and as such, the messengers of God. Now is the time when women must have the tools to help all of us manifest more Light in the world.”

A Kabbalistic beacon of light, this book provides a set of tools for the challenges in daily life. With graceful simplicity, Karen has provided an abundant offering of the wisdom inherent in Kabbalah while sharing her own story of a true calling.
